

This is just another example of the rich trying to throw their money around to get their way yet once again. I love listening to my XM radio. I hardly ever listen to normal radio ever unless it's to listen to a sports broadcast. So, I guess this is the main reason the lobbyists are afraid. It's just plain nice to listen to the radio and not have to hear annoying commercials more than you hear music or talk programs. The weather and traffic channels are also very convenient, because I can find out how the traffic is before I leave my house instead of hearing the report after I am already stuck in traffic. So I employ you leave XM radio the way it is the way I want it and the way I pay my hard earned cash for it.
